

Haaretz, Galleria, Oct. 8, 2007

Teruo Kurosaki
To Serve as Andy Prize Judge

The Andrea Bronfman Prize for Decorative Arts, founded by Charles Bronfman, is an annual award for an outstanding Israeli artist in ceramics, jewelry, textile, or glass. The winner receives a prize of NIS 50,000, an exhibition of his or her work at the Tel Aviv Museum of Art, and the purchase of two works for the Tel Aviv Museum of Art and the Israel Museum in Jerusalem.

The organizers of The Andy Prize announced last week that Teruo Kurosaki, the creator of the Tokyo Designers Block, a popular international exhibition of contemporary design, will serve as the international judge of its prestigious jury.

Kurosaki will arrive in Israel in mid-November for the selection of the 2008 Andy Prize winner.

Kurosaki is the founder of SPUTNIK, an international design collective. His two design companies, IDEE and Flowstone, showcase and market the work of rising designers.

The jury panel also includes Nirith Nelson, veteran curator and chairperson of The Andy Prize jury; Tali Lachover, artist and designer, head of the Department for Textile Design at Shenkar College of Engineering and Design; and, Meira Yagid Haimovich, curator of the Department of Design and Architecture at the Tel Aviv Museum of Art.

The Andy Prize is receiving candidates' applications through October 30th. Information can be found at www.theandy.org.il.