israel through art ▶ a guide

Dear Art Lover,

On behalf of AIDA's Board of Directors, Advisors, Staff and most importantly our Artists, we welcome you to experience AIDA's Art Guide to Israel's studios, galleries and museum shops.

Time and again, AIDA receives requests from individuals traveling to Israel for information on how to visit and purchase work from local artists. As a non-profit committed to fostering Israel's decorative artists, we view this guide as a tool to connect you to the many artists AIDA has worked with over the years.

In the pages of this book, you will discover an unbeaten path to Israel's art community, one which cannot be found in a typical tourist guidebook. Many of the artists in this guide have stand-alone galleries, while others have private studios that may require an appointment. We guarantee the extra effort to visit these studios will not only be rewarding but will provide a glimpse of Israel you may not otherwise encounter.

For an even more personalized adventure, we invite you to contact AIDA's Israel Director, Aviva Ben Sira at Aviva@BenSira.net or 011.972.5.383.783, before or during your trip to assist you in setting up a truly unique experience.

Enjoy your journey!

This guide was made possible thanks to a generous grant from the Karma Foundation. Please visit www.AIDAarts.org for access to AIDA's interactive art guide, where you can search by medium and/or region.

Try as we might to ensure our locations are up-to-date, artists move. Please be sure to contact the artists by phone or email before you visit to make sure their location has not changed.

Marcelle draws inspiration from the landscape surrounding her studio in Kochav Yair. As a child, Marcelle grew up in South Africa and brings into her art the simplicity of that country's beauty. The inspiring sights and sounds of her past and present environments are distilled into minimalist, abstract sculptures and vessels. The symmetry and classical balance of wheel-thrown pieces is deliberately altered, creating sensual shapes with a dynamic center of gravity. Marcelle's interests are in issues of containment, emptiness, and the exploration of volume and space. Her works can also be found at the Shlush Shloshim Gallery in Neve Tzedek.

Studio has a blue door

Appointment Only

AIDA artist

Irit deftly plays with the fragile, textural and translucent qualities of porcelain to produce graceful thrown pots reminiscent of Scandinavian aesthetic. Irit challenges herself with shapes, colors and textures. She concludes each work by a firing process that freezes her object in an instant leaving hazardous and quite unpredictable results. Irit is the director of the ceramics department at the Bezalel Academy of Art & Design in Jerusalem.

Appointment Only

In her work, Meira explores the feelings of belonging and the objects that tie the human spirit to memory. As she works, Meira listens to music allowing her mind to dig up old memories and guide her sculpting hands. This process results in extremely personal porcelain objects. Meira is a graduate of the Hebrew University and a recipient of the Rothschild prize for crafts; she is a member of the Ceramics Artists Association of Israel.

Michal transforms solid clay forms into soft organic works of art. Her vessels appear to be folding and collapsing inward in the most natural way. The closely spaced holes in her work, each one produced with a pin prick, appear similar to an organism's cellular structure or a porous skin. Michal's work is displayed at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and the Racine Art Museum in Wisconsin.

This married design team believes that a piece of jewelry can arouse a sense of pleasure through the perfection of its design and craftsmanship. Nirit, who studied at the Bezalel Art School in Jerusalem, brings exquisite craftsmanship to the partnership, while Avi explores new methods for manufacturing contemporary jewelry. Together, the Bermans produce collections of jewelry that are renowned for their harmonious combination of classic motives and innovative design.

Lily works in fiber and natural materials such as wood, dried fruit, wool, paper, and old oriental fabrics. Her sculptures and objects are reminiscent of ancient household utensils and ritual vessels. She seeks her inspiration from the artifacts of ancient Israel and its natural wonders, the Mediterranean, the desert, and the Galilee where she resides.

Colorful and vibrant, Moshiko's jewelry combines polymers, silver, and gold to designs inspired by nature, architecture and science. In his work, the organic morphs into high tech, and the futuristic meshes with antiquity. The sculpted jewelry is created with comfort and functionality in mind. The surfaces are either hand painted or embedded with illustrated and photographic compositions created in the studio.

Seamgallery, located in Megadim, a village in the northern region of Israel, exhibits fiber art. The gallery opened in 1996 with the aim of exhibiting the work of local fiber artists and to introduce the Israeli public to fiber art as an independent art field. Since its opening, the gallery has hosted more than 90 exhibitions of embroidery, weaving, collage, patchwork, paper, sculpture and other needle and fiber techniques. In addition to organizing local exhibitions, the gallery also represents Israeli artists in international exhibitions abroad.

Sunday - Saturday: 9am - 4pm

Appointment Only

Shlomit creates free blown decorative vessels in a multitude of colors. Her artworks are inspired by nature and are both functional and sculptural. After a twelve year career in education, Shlomit discovered the fascinating world of glass blowing when visiting an exhibition of Dale Chihuly's work at the Minnesota Institute of Art. The burning passion to learn glass artistry led Shlomit to establish her own workshop, which is housed within the artist colony at Kibbutz Ein – Carmel, south of Haifa. The studio is primarily dedicated to artistic creation but also is used for teaching and hosting guest artists.

The Umm el-Fahem Art Gallery

Umm el-Fahem

t: 04.631.5257

elsabar@netvision.net.il

Sunday - Thursday: 9am - 5pm

Saturday: 9am - 5pm

The Umm el-Fahem Art Gallery was founded in 1996, on the initiative of local residents and artists who wanted to bring quality contemporary art to Umm el-Fahem. With a lack of other art galleries in the Arab sector in Israel, the gallery has become an important social and cultural meeting place. Contemporary art exhibits, symposia, creative workshops and seminars have drawn large audiences and have established the gallery as an important center in the local and international cultural scene. The gallery encourages cultural dialogue between Arab and Jewish artists on a variety of themes, including ones related to critical current affairs. The gallery is on its way to becoming the first Arab-Israeli museum of contemporary art.

What is an AIDA artist?

An AIDA artist is an Israeli-based artist selected by AIDA's artistic jury—consisting of Jane Adlin, Associate Curator Nineteenth-Century, Modern and Contemporary Art The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Dale Anderson and Davira S. Taragin, Independent Curator—in conjunction with its staff, to participate in one or more of AIDA's programs. In its selection of artists, AIDA looks for ingenuity, creativity, commitment, and passion. Above all, it looks for artists who are making a contribution to international contemporary decorative arts. The artists included in this guide represent only those AIDA artists that have studios open to visitors. For a complete listing of AIDA artists please visit our website at www.AIDAarts.org.

The selection of galleries, museum shops and studios represented in AIDA's Art Guide showcase the best in contemporary Israeli decorative art and exhibit a selection of AIDA artists.

AIDA's mission is to foster the development of contemporary decorative artists from Israel by connecting them to an international audience of galleries, institutions and collectors.

AIDA is a certified 501(c)3 organization and relies on the generosity of donors like you to support its programs.

To make a tax deductible contribution please mail your check made out to AIDA to our address below:
